HUSBAND AND WIFE REUNITED SYMPATHY FOR BOERS

ROMANCE THAT EXTENDS FROM ARIZONA TO CHICAGO.

He is on His Death Bed and at the Last Realized How He Had Neglected Her.

Chicago, April 28.-Down in Arizona dust-clad man rode up to an adobe hut three days ago. He was a physidan, and the cowboy who brought him had traveled many miles over the sandy hills. The doctor entered the little cabin and looked at the man who lay there in the bunk.

"You have one week more to live,"

At that the man in the bunk stirred and raised himself on his elbow. "Seven days," he murmured. Then he left the bunk with some effort and wrote a telegram.

Today this man, James Garrard Stevenson, a grandson of Kentucky's old governor, is to be married to his former wife at his father's home in Woodlawn. The telegram he sent from the cabin in Arizona, where he had gone after health, was despatched to his old Misseuri sweetheart, who is now a clerk in the treasury department at Washington. It asked her to come to Washington. It asked her to come to Chicago and meet him—the lack of words told better than the intent that ne was dying.

Yesterday morning she came and resterday morning she came and found her former husband. He was waiting outside the station in a cab. The driver was told to go to the court house, and there a license permitting them to remarry was issued. Today the ceremony is to be performed at the home of David Stevenson in Woodlawn.

Mr. Stevenson will not live another week," said his friends. "It is doubtful whether he will live another day."

Stevenson was born in Glasgow, and his former wife in Mortal and the same of the same his former wife in Marshall, Mo. They were married eleven years ago and went to Chicago to live. During the World's fair Stevenson made considerable money in real estate. Six years ago he became ill from following the go he became in from following the teachings of a sect which he had joined. The physician intimated that consumption would follow unless he built himself up. Stevenson went to Arizona, to improve his health.

Sentiment in Germany is Now Pro-British.

PLEASES THE EMPEROR

HE WANTS INTIMATE RELA-TIONS BETWEEN THEM.

Feelings Have Been Changed By the Behavior of France and Russia Since the South African War-Better Spirit Manifested at Berlin Toward the United States.

(Copyright, 1900, by the Associated Press.) Berlin, April 28.—Interest in the South African war has flagged, owing to the lack of exciting news. The semi-official Militair Wochensblatt says it is impossible to gain a clear idea of the present status there "because of the want of concentrated efforts on both sides, the actions being small and scattered, probably owing to Lord Roberts' mistake in believing that the southern half of the Orange Free State was pacified, whereas new Boer commandoes are evidently forming there constantly." Everything points to a long duration of the war.

During the week the German press

During the week the German press paid great attention to the relations between Great Britain and Germany, and it was interesting to note that even such an aglophobe paper as the Hamburger Nachrichten added "it is foolish to needlessly necessaria." foolish to needlessly anger and provoke England," and advised the German people to "use more wisdom and circumspection when criticising the English or the war."

It is also significant that the government organ, the North German Ga-ette, reproduced the above article. The Vossische Zeitung came out with an edvessische Zeitung came out with an edtorial semi-excusing itself for previous utterances and claiming that what the German press had been do-ing was only giving the British good advice in criticising the war, otherwise remaining friendly to England.

Pro-British Arguments.

The whole government press now multaneously prints pro-British arguments, evidently having received a cue from headquarters. It is quite true that the emperor has all along been pro-English. He regards friendly and even intimate relations between the two countries as one of the corner stones of his policy.

The correspondent of the Associated Press has from time to time furnished proof of the above. His majesty's latest evidence in this line is his personal utterances, knowledge of which has not penetrated beyond his immediate surroundings, but it is said that they are all confirmatory of his pro-British

The emperor is one mind with the oreign affairs minister, Count von Buelow, and both of them have been strengthened in their views by the be-havior of France and Russia since the his majesty being a firm believer in a cordial understanding between Great Britain and the United States and Germany. He has not scrupled to give expression to this conviction during the past year to both the British ambassador, Sir Frank C. Lascelles, and the United States ambassador, Andrew D. White.

Disapproved by Agrarians.

It is needless to say that this policy is wholly disapproved of by the agrarians, who are pointing out that the late Prince Bismarck always thought Russia was Germany's best friend.

The semi-official Post, correcting the views expressed by part of the British and American press that a strong anti-American feeling is prevailing in Germany, concludes:

"It is true the war with Spain began without sufficient cause, was more se-verely condemned, but now that peace is restored, we endeavor to be just to the Americans, not being blind to their feelings, but admitting their great achievements in every depart-ment of life. The United States has stepped into the rank of the world powers, and we do not know why Ger-many should show animosity, since both powers rather should go the same The visit of the emperor to Prince
